Honghong and I were classmates. Everyone liked her and wanted to be her friend.

Honghong loved to read comic books. She didn't like to talk to us boys, unless we had a comic book. I saved some pocket money and bought a "Dagger Li"¹. I deliberately let her see me with the comic book. Honghong came to me and asked me to lend it to her.

I invited Honghong to read the comic book with me by the river next to our school. Honghong nodded with a smile.

At dusk the sun was shining on the river, and the river looked beautiful. Students had to walk along the river on their way home from school. When the boys saw me sitting with Honghong, they all envied² me.

It was getting dark, and Honghong wanted to take the book home. I wouldn't let her, but I promised she could have the book to read by the river the following day.

In the evening, a boy from my school named Xiaoniu came to borrow the comic book. The following day after school, I asked Honghong to go to the river to read the book with me. Honghong said she had finished the book, because Xiaoniu had lent her my book the previous night.

I quarrelled with Xiaoniu.

Xiaoniu didn't want to talk to me anymore, and Honghong didn't want to talk to me either.

I decided I would never save money for comic books again.
