Malaysia ranked 31st in world tourism

Only six Asian countries made the top 50 in the first ever Travel and Tourism Competitiveness Index produced by the World Economic Forum (WEF). The rankings are based on findings from 124 countries. The aim is to identify the "most attractive" environments for developing the travel and tourism industry.

Hong Kong and Singapore made the top 10, Japan and Taiwan made the top 30 and Malaysia and Thailand made the top 50. Meanwhile, Pacific countries Australia and New Zealand were ranked 13th and 14th respectively.

"The study is aimed to measure factors that made it attractive to develop the travel and tourism industry of individual countries," said Jennifer Blanke, a senior economist at WEF who worked on the report.

Malaysia has been ranked second for fair attendances in the world, in addition to sixth for destination marketing campaigns. "Malaysia has good ground transport infrastructure and excellent price competitiveness, in the form of low ticket taxes and airport charges."

"The government has prioritized travel and tourism, with a policy conducive to the development of the industry," added the report. "The country's policy environment is conducive to the development of the travel and tourism industry."

According to the United Nations World Tourism Organization (UNWTO), the travel and tourism industry is one of the most important international economic activities, and the main industry in many countries. It is also the fastest growing economic sector in terms of foreign exchange earnings. "The sector is an important driver of growth and prosperity, and within developing countries, for poverty reduction," said UNWTO. "In fact, in developing countries most new jobs are created in tourism industries."
